

BRIARGROVE PARK

AREA HISTORY

In the 1960s, early developers planted two trees for every house that was built in the Briargrove Park area providing a community that is heavily wooded. The "family-oriented neighborhood," surrounded by Buffalo Bayou, has access to parks, playgrounds, an area swimming pool and lighted tennis courts. Strong civic involvement is apparent in the community with organizations such as the Briargrove Park Property Owners, Inc., the Briargrove Park Mother's Club and an annual 4th of July Parade. With traditionally similar floor plans, and styles ranging from contemporary to colonial, the area of approximately 1,482 homes is protected by a security patrol. A secluded setting, strong community involvement and convenience of location make Briargrove Park a highly preferred Houston area to live in.
